

Mount Everest 2016 - Blog No 12:

Ready to go

Hi everyone,

I have a few more updates to share:

A group of Sherpas who have been fixing the ropes to the summit of Everest have reached the top yesterday and this got quite some press coverage:

<http://nos.nl/artikel/2104437-top-mount-everest-na-twee-jaar-weer-bereikt.html>

<http://abcnews.go.com/International/wireStory/climbers-scale-everest-years-disasters-39033629>

<http://www.nydailynews.com/news/world/climbers-mount-everest-nearing-summit-2-years-tragedy-article-1.2631956>

Russell has published a newsletter in which he shares the same, but more importantly he has been open about the most likely summit day for the team if weather allows: Friday the 13th

<http://us4.campaign-archive1.com/?u=4d54062af8fcd0ba4c26d9f6&id=7836fa8867>

The team is currently spending the night in camp 3 and today they are planning to go up to camp 4. I expect that very late tonight (or very early tomorrow morning) they will start their summit bid.

Thanks everyone for your very kind, supportive and encouraging messages – they mean a lot to us! It's just amazing to feel the support of so many people around us.

Daan